

WOMAN FAINTS AT WHITE SLAVE INVESTIGATION

Witness Admits She Had Been
With Prisoner Several Months.

Bertha Peterson, held as a witness against Joseph Wolf, charged in the federal court with white slavery, fainted this morning when taken before Ernest Chambers, United States commissioner to make bond.

Wolf, taken into custody several days ago by the police, was arrested this morning on a federal warrant charging that he transported the woman here from Wichita, Kan., for immoral purposes. The woman told the officers she lived in Minneapolis and had been with Wolf for several months.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus filed in the district court yesterday for the release of Wolf and W. J. Holt, arrested with him, was not heard this morning after the federal warrant was served. Holt was held under a bond of $2,000 for trial in the federal court. He was placed in the county jail. Bertha Peterson was ordered held under bond as a witness against him.

Charges that Wolf and Holt fled from J. J. Matchew, a farmer, Leota, Kan., out of $3,500 in a hog, still stock and will be investigated further this afternoon when Matchew arrives here to attempt to identify the men. Unless Matchew identifies the men, Holt and his wife will be released from custody of the police. No charges have been made against him.

BRITISH MARINE LOSSES HEAVIER

August—Best Month in Two Years, However.

Copyright, 1918, by the New York Times, Inc. The Chicago Tribune and the Oklahoma City Times.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The admiralty's monthly statement of shipping losses due to enemy action and marine risk during August the total sinkings amounted to 327,678 gross tonnage, of which 176,401 were British and 151,277 allied and neutral as compared with adjusted figures for July of 323,772, 182,324 and 141,448, respectively. The British losses from all causes during August were 10,882 tons higher than in July, which was the lowest month since the introduction of unrestricted submarine warfare.

It is officially pointed out that if the British losses from enemy action alone are considered August was better than any month since September, 1916. The tonnage of steamships of 500 gross tons and over entering and clearing United Kingdom ports from and to ports overseas during August was 8,158,639 as compared with 7,710,896 in July, and 7,385 in June.

FATHER TALKS OF HIS DAUGHTER'S CASE

Her illness cost him many a Dollar—Nothing But Tanlac Helped Her.

"My daughter's illness cost me many a dollar, but nothing helped her any until she started taking Tanlac," said the father of Miss Ethel Brewer, 209 Pearl street, Chattanooga, Tenn.

"I suffered terribly from stomach trouble," said Miss Brewer, who joined in the conversation. "All I could eat was a little milk and white of eggs. Everything I ate caused gas to form and kept me sick and nauseated and I was miserable all the time. My hands were broken out and I was told that I had pellagra. I fell off in weight until I only weighed ninety-eight pounds."

"When I finished my fourth bottle of Tanlac, my hands and arms were all healed up and the stomach trouble had disappeared. I am not nervous like I used to be. I sleep like a child, my color has improved, my appetite is fine and everything I eat agrees with me. I have gained fifteen pounds and feel better than I have in a long time."

Tanlac is sold in Oklahoma City by the Westfall Drug Co., and leading druggists and dealers everywhere.

THE STRUGGLE

Up Hill.

Our limbs, in some grotesque way, seem hunched directly to our hearts. When the heart is light we tread on air and our arms are wings. When the heart is leaden level ground feels like a steep hill and a hill becomes a perpendicular cliff. With coldness between John and herself, between herself and Lillian Blake and between the Blakes themselves, for all of which she now began to blame herself, Edith Ferrol felt her limbs leaden as she went about her new enterprise.

Only a day ago her plan to supplement their income by selling the goodies she made at home seemed to lead straight out of all difficulties, especially since Mrs. Carter had given the heartening breath between her and those from whom she expected cheer and support—and let the ordinary walks of life become an uphill climb. Firm prospects took on the uncertainty of dreams too good to prove true.

Suppose Mrs. Carter decided she did not care for the jams and cakes and goodies Edith made? Then not only the labor but the money Edith put into the venture would be thrown away. Oh, the money—especially the money!

Edith went about with a burden of "supposes" weighing down her mind, heart and spirit. But still she went on with her work. Therein lies the spirit of real courage—to keep on plodding while the mind says "No use!" the heart says "Keep on! Don't know why, but—keep on!" Edith kept on, kept going through the motions.

If we valued the spirit at its real worth, the courage Edith showed would have brought her rich reward. But it was dollars and cents she needed, not soul development.

Fortunately for her, riches of the spirit sometimes count themselves into currency of the realm. Several days after she had delivered Mrs. Carter's order she got a letter with a monogrammed "C" on the envelope. When with beating heart she opened it a lavender colored check fluttered out. It was only later, when the numb feeling of suspense had melted into tears of relief, that Edith saw a note with the check.

"Danville, at Sunday dinner.
"My dear Mrs. Ferrol—A company of six at dinner at my house have voted your delicacies delicious, and want more. Enclosed is my check and good wishes, from

"MRS. NORVAL CARTER."

The burden fell off Edith's heart and

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work. (Adv.)

with it the shackles from her limbs. She fairly flew about the neighborhood, interviewing housewives on the subject of buying her homemade products. She met with only moderate response. But to one who has climbed up hill with a burden of discouragement, walking on level ground is easy. Edith marketed, cooked, baked, preserved, concocted and delivered her orders with such eagerness that the children begged for the privilege of helping her, so much it seemed like play. (And there were constant wonderful bowls to lick out.)

Strangely enough, Edith's very success was what kept her husband from making the overtures he really yearned to proffer after the coldness between them. He realized he had given her no encouragement at the outset of her enterprise, that he had even added to her burden by quarreling with her over Lillian Blake. He had long become ashamed of his action and would frankly have acknowledged it to Edith, had she not suddenly met with her bit of success. Now he felt hesitant. It would look as though he were following that snobbish instinct of the world by giving to those who have, merely because they have. He even suspected his own motives.

He and Edith had gone about their daily intercourse with that pretense of everything being harmonious, with them which all right-hearted married couples know how to affect. But in their own hearts they knew the truth—they were living apart.

Edith, waiting wistfully for John to proffer peace and love, went briskly about her work, eagerly ready to meet him more than half way. If he had only seized her suddenly when her hands were in the dough pan, or set a kiss upon her face as it rose flushed from an investigation of the oven! But John held awkwardly back, abashed at himself and afraid of the reprisals he felt he deserved. Thus did the Ferrols commit the common sin of wasting golden hours and days of life through needless misunderstandings and foolish pride.

In the Gloaming—

When you sit alone, thinking of other and perhaps happier days, don't you ever feel need of the comfort music can bring? The old familiar heart-songs of your childhood—you still idealize them
—their simple sweetness thrills your very soul
when occasionally you hear one of them.

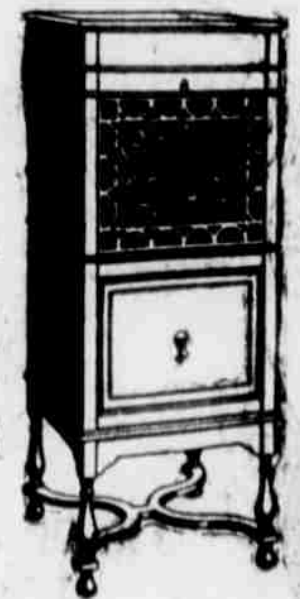

Or when friends arrive, and together you make a happy little group, don't you ever long for music to bring its sentiment, its romance, its comradeship into your midst?

These and an infinite variety of other pleasures may be yours if you will take into
